

AOL  cityguide

kstreet

High-tech, all-liquor lounge on Franklin Park.
Bar/Club

Extravagant, upscale and thoroughly wired, kstreet targets DC's luxury market with European bottle service in an all-liquor lounge. A trendier term for table reservations, bottle service allows willing guests to pay a minimum (usually $300 and up) to reserve tables and couches in exchange for purchasing full bottles of top shelf liquor and champagne. Servers drop off tumblers, bottles, glassware and garnishes, then leave mixing and pouring to the patrons.

The high-tech minimalist space with its futuristic feel has 22 high-performance cameras for web casting parties, rows of plasma TVs and flat-screen television monitors built into block-style laminate tables. Arrange in advance to have baby pictures for birthday parties, table reservation announcements or special messages broadcast on plasma TV. Additional amenities for those who reserve ahead include free valet parking and free admission for friends. There's no doubt that kstreet delivers a powerful wow factor, but some complain the club is a wannabe VIP illusion where expensive liquor is served in plastic cups.
-- Denise Iacangelo

NOMINATED FOR CITY'S BEST 2007
SINGLES SCENE